The Vision of Waskawakes

Waskawakes, the last of his mighty tribe, dwelling in the "Valley of a Hundred Hills," was very sad. His Big White Chief, called General Putnam by his white brothers, had gone; and with him had gone so many of Waskawakes' best friends, his beautiful Hemlocks. He had loved those great, drooping Hemlocks, every one; and had sat beneath their silvery boughs communing with the departed spirits of his brothers.

His Big White Chief had ordered his white men to cut those mighty trees for wood and beds, and now Waskawakes' beautiful Valley was a sad dwelling place. Waskawakes had wandered far along the banks of his Little River to the Big River which carried many waters to the Father of Waters which he could just see many miles to the south. He had climbed the rough trails of the valleys and mountains and had come to the top of his Big Mountain overlooking all his other ninety-nine and all the valleys and rivers between. He was resting at "Sweet Waters," his gurgling spring, and asking the Great Spirit to let him join his brothers in the Happy Hunting Grounds, when "Sweet Waters" spoke to him, saying :

"Oh, Great Waskawakes, the last of your mighty tribe that dwelled in the 'Valley of a Hundred Hills', be not sad. The Great Spirit has seen fit to make this once beautiful valley your final resting place; and you, in spirit, shall dwell here for all time. The Great Spirit shall watch over you and shall direct the White Man in the re-beautifying of this land.

"The spirits of your loved ones shall be with you always: your beloved Chief Waramaug shall dwell in the 'Lake without Bottom' whose waters watched over by the spirit of the great Warrior, Aspetuck, shall run the length of your Valley. You shall dwell in the bosom of the mountain on which you now sit (it shall always bear your name, but be called Mt. Tom by the White Man). You shall watch over me and my thousand sisters to keep us ever bubbling to water the millions of 'Baby Evergreen Trees' which the White-Man-Lover-of-Trees shall grow on the spot where your wigwam now stands.

"The long, rough, winding trail shall be made smooth and straight as far as the eye can see to the south and to the north and White Men without number—even more than the countless leaves of all your trees—shall float over this beautiful Trail as you float over the waters of your Lake Waramaug.

"Look- Waskawakes. Behold your Valley, wherein you shall ever dwell, made more beautiful than ever."

Waskawakes opened his eyes and his sadness departed. He was content.

POMEROY BLUE SPRUCE GARDENS

NEW MILFORD, CONN.

BABY EVERGREENS

AMERICAN HEMLOCK

(Tsuga Canadensis)

With its long slender green branches (whitish under surface) tipped with the delicate light green new growth drooping gracefully to the ground—the Hemlock is known as the most beautiful of all native conifers.

It will remain small for many years if sheared. Especially recommended for foundation groups and hedges.

Thrives best in moist, deep loam soil—partially shaded and cool.

American Hemlock can be furnished in the following sizes :

Three year transplants, code 3T.

Two year seedlings, code 2S.

Four year transplants, code 4T.

Selected Four year transplants, $1.00 each.

CONCOLOR (SILVER) FIR

(Abies Concolor)

This beautiful fir richly deserves all the compliments it receives and is certainly "The Queen of the Firs." It retains all its lower branches. The foliage is beautiful throughout the year. The branches resemble a beautiful ostrich plume fan; dark green in the center, fringed with light green, feathery needles.

Any soil. Especially recommended for tall background screens or choice individual specimens.

Concolor Fir can be furnished in the following sizes :

Three year transplants, code 3T.

Two year old seedlings, code 2S.

COLORADO BLUE SPRUCE

(Picea Pungens)

"King of The Spruces," with its regal grace, is an ornamental, well-known to all. It is very hardy in any locality—in any State. Healthy and wonderfully beautiful. No home is complete without Blue Spruces.

Four year old transplants. Code 4T.

ENGLEMANN SPRUCE

(Picea Engelmanni)

The foliage of Engleman Spruce is deep blue-green. That of some trees being decidedly silvery or whitish. It grows tall, making a rather spire-like crown. As compared to the Colorado Blue Spruce the Engleman Spruce has a softer and more symmetrical appearance. It is among the hardiest and most desirable Rocky Mountain Evergreens, but it is much less known than some of the others. Often a robin's egg blue, very beautiful.

Englemann Spruce can be furnished in the following sizes :

Three year old transplants, code 3T.

Four year old transplants, code 4T.

Five year old transplants, code 5T.

(Englemanns are not quite as large as other varieties of same age).

This group of hardy Evergreens thrives in almost any soil and seems indifferent to exposure. Much used in producing architectural effects. Desirable tub plants.

Arborvitae can be furnished in the four year transplants, code 4T.

Five year old transplants, code 5T.

PONDEROSA PINE

(Pinus Ponderosa)

The Rocky Mountain Yellow Pine has very long needles (6 to 10 inches), deep green above with bluish-white beneath. Extremely handsome and ornamental. Very drought-resistant and hardy. Grows tall and upright—a well-rounded pyramidal shape.

This tree promises to be one of the best pines for reforestry work as it is not subject to the blister rust. The wood is often sold as white pine being only slightly resinous and very soft. Will grow in any locality and soil.

Ponderosa Pine can be furnished in two year old seedlings. Code 2S.

Ponderosa Pine can be furnished in three year old transplants. Code 3T.

BABY EVERGREENS

The striking beauty of the finest country estates is largely due to the planting of ornamental evergreens. Among the most popular of these evergreens are the BLUE SPRUCES and Concolor Fir. Specimen Blue Spruces are often sold at ten dollars or more per vertical foot, many selling for more than one hundred dollars each. Our "Baby Evergreen Plan" makes it easy for you to have a beautiful planting at very little cost or trouble.

BALSAM FIR

(Abies Balsamea)

Foliage, dark green above, silvery beneath. "Balsam odor" of the northern woods, is caused by this rapid growing tree. Best in damp places. Desirable for Japanese gardens—as Baby trees have appearance of big trees.

DOUGLAS FIR

(Abies Douglassi)

Discovered 1791—Rapid grower. Thrives almost any location. Grows sixty feet high, spreads eighteen feet. Open, broad, sharp-pointed pyramid.

RETINISPORA

Pisifera-Pea-fruited. Cypress—Foliage bright green, pendulous branches Pyramidal, rapid grower. Stands shearing to form wanted.

EUROPEAN LARCH

(Larix Europeau)

Fast grower—Straight, tall—particularly beautiful in early spring and fall when the needles turn golden yellow. Needles fall in winter.

MUGHO PINE

(Dwarf Mountain Pine)

Bright green needles. Valuable for foundation planting, rock-gardens, and covering slopes. Does not grow over 3-6 feet high. Spreads 6-8 feet.

SIZE OF TRANSPLANTS

In the propagation of our little trees we do not force for height but check the growth above by root pruning and transplanting as we find the stocky trees with good root system make the most beautiful specimen trees, and can be planted by our customers on arrival and moved later with a minimum chance of loss.

FRUIT TREES

NIAGARA COUNTY, N. Y., has been known as the fruit center of America for many years.

My grandfather settled in the heart of that County in 1810 and in 1876 my father started a nursery on the old Homestead (which is now Internationally known as THE POMEROY ENGLISH WALNUT FARMS).

For the last thirty years I have made a study of fruit trees and the raising of choice fruit, not only in Niagara County, but in the other important fruit sections of the United States. I shall be glad to give my customers the benefit of this experience in the selection of the best varieties of fruit trees for their orchards or garden plantings and also the best methods used by the most successful fruit growers.

We can furnish the finest New York grown fruit trees and grape vines direct from the nurseries at very reasonable prices.

"They Grow"

Pomeroy Blue Spruce Gardens

Edwin C. Pomeroy

New Milford, Connecticut

Gentlemen:

We had planned to send to you, this fall, a complete catalogue with our fifty varieties of "Baby ornamental evergreens" illustrated in colors; but some of our old customers and friends said they would prefer extra trees; for a photograph could never be as beautiful as the little trees growing in their gardens.

As the growth of our business has been entirely due to the kindness of our customers and friends we are always glad to show our appreciation of their courtesy, and try to do as they wish. So we have decided to save the expense of an illustrated catalogue and give our friends a special "FRIENDSHIP DISCOUNT" of twenty percent --20%-- on all "Baby Evergreen" orders this fall.

This wholesale discount will give our friends a chance to make enough orders from the Garden Club members and their friends to pay for their own order if they wish. Just mark your order "FRIENDSHIP" so we will know you are entitled to the wholesale discount.

If you receive more than one of our lists will you please give the extra ones to your friends?

Thanking you for past favors, we are,

Yours very truly,

Pomeroy Blue Spruce Gardens

Special Gladiolus Bulbs For Spring Delivery

We will send one hundred first size bulbs from our Gardens which created so much interest and comment throughout New England last summer. Our one aim in this BBSG Mixture is to have it a living advertisement for our Pomeroy Blue Spruce Gardens. We know you will be more than pleased with our selection. BBSG Mixture, $2.50 per hundred; 500 for $10.00.

HARDY LILIES

Lilies commence flowering in June and with the various species maintain a continuous and unbroken succession in the shrubbery border. Most Lily Bulbs, being of late maturity, are not ready before October, November and December (the best time to plant them). Where the ground is liable to freeze up before the late lilies arrive it should be mulched with 6 or 8 inches of leaves or manure to keep it from freezing, so the bulbs may be planted on arrival.

AURATUM—(The Golden Rayed Lily of Japan). The flowers are pure white, thickly studded with crimson spots, while through the center of each petal runs a clear golden band. Fully expanded, the flowers measure nearly a foot across and possess a most delicious fragrance. Season of bloom from July to October. 3 to 5 feet.

Extra size bulbs, 50c each; $5.00 doz; $37.50 per 100
Mammoth bulbs, 75c each; $7.50 doz; $60.00 per 100

REGALE—("A Royal Beauty"). The flowers are white, slightly suffused with pink, with a beautiful shade of canary yellow at the center, blending out part way up the trumpet. The fragrance is fascinating. A splendid hardy Lily for the garden, flowering in July. Well-grown bulbs often produce five to eight blooms. 60 cents each; $6.00 dozen; $45.00 per 100.

SPECIOSUM OR LANCIFOLIUM—The varieties of L. Speciosum or Lancifolium are perhaps the most popular Lilies grown. They are easy of cultivation, and produce large flowers of delicate beauty on strong stems; height, from 2 to 4 feet; blooming in August. The varieties are :

SPECIOSUM ALBUM—White. Large bulbs, 60c each, $6.00 dozen; $45.00 per 100.

SPECIOSUM RUBRUM (Roseum)—White, shaded and spotted with rose and red. Large bulbs, 60 cents each; $6.00 dozen; $45.00 per 100.

JAPAN EASTER LILY (Lilium Longiflorum Giganteum)—This Japanese type is highly thought of for late winter and Easter forcing—though the bulbs of this variety are often carried over in cold storage to be brought into bloom at any desired time the succeeding year. The plant is of sturdy stocky growth—with black marked stems. The flowers of purest white are the largest of the longiflorums. For Shipment, October to December. Extra Size Bulbs, 8 to 10 inch. 40 cents each; $4.00 dozen; $30 00 per 100.

ENGLISH WALNUT FARMS

Edwin C. Pomeroy

NEW MILFORD, CONN.

Some years ago my father found a hard English Walnut tree which had been transplanted from Northern Europe. This tree was bearing quantities of nuts of exceptional flavor and fullness of meat; in fact better than any he had ever seen. He procured some of the nuts to plant on his farm near Lockport, N. Y., but the children found them and ate all but seven. These seven all grew, and in a few years the young trees began to bear nuts fully as good as the original.

Father was very proud of his seven trees which were fast proving to be the most valuable on his farm, one having produced over one hundred dollars worth of nuts in a single year. They were also the handsomest trees in the country, tall and shapely with white bark, dense dark foliage and wide spreading branches.

Horticulturalists came from all parts of the country to see the trees, as they knew all attempts to grow English Walnuts in the North from other varieties had been failures. These they found perfectly hardy, very good bearers, and the nuts the finest they had ever eaten.

They were so delighted that they begged father to raise them some trees from his big ones, realizing that these would be thoroughly acclimated. The requests were so persistent that father did so, the result being that these trees are now well distributed as ornamental trees about the country and have proven to be perfectly hardy throughout the United States and parts of Canada.

We are now planting groves of these hardy trees on our farms and find them more profitable, with much less care, than any fruit we can raise.

We have a few of these young trees for transplanting. I have written thinking you would be interested in having some for your home grounds or farms.
